
RentalsExpress.com Adds New Dimension To Its Web Site

Multi-faceted Vacation Rental Web site Now Offers Informative articles on Top Vacation Destinations

For Immediate Release

BRECKENRIDGE, Colo./EWorldWire/March 29, 2005 --- Travelers shouldn't spend time searching the Web for vacation information when they can find it all - activities, attractions and lodging information - in one stop. RentalsExpress.com not only offers great deals on top vacation rentals in the most popular vacation destinations, but now also offers informative articles on each state and its top tourism spots.

Constantly adapting the Web site to fit the needs of both vacation rental searchers and the property owners who list their vacation homes, RentalsExpress.com is quickly becoming the most comprehensive vacation rental Web site of its kind. No longer will vacationers have to search multiple Web sites to find tourism information on their destination. RentalsExpress.com now offers state, regional and local information on everything from the best antique store to the most magnificent state park. While searching for a rental property in Vail, Colo., for example, visitors to the Web site can also read about the top restaurants in town, where to shop, hot nightspots and attractions and adventures to be found in the area.

Property owners who list their homes with RentalsExpress.com appreciate the added dimensions the articles provide the Web site.

"I think it's great that the Web site has added the service of providing local information," said Alys Macias, owner of River Ridge Rentals, who lists her properties on the Web site. "My renters are thrilled to find that their questions about restaurants and activities in the area can be answered by the same website where they found their vacation rental."

The vacation rental Web site that gained exposure for its easy-to-use keyword search module and user-friendly site has taken another step to make planning a vacation that much easier.
