

LuCyrne Software Launches CompleteIM, An Out Of The Box Enterprise Instant Messaging Application Utilizing Scrolling Text And Eliminating Chat Boxes

LuCyrne Software introduces CompleteIM (www.completeim.com) as the first widely available Enterprise Instant Messenger which replaces chat box style conversations with scrolling text.

For Immediate Release

CARLSBAD, Calif./EWorldWire/Jan. 20, 2006 --- Organizations which would like internal instant messaging, without additional network security risks, databases to manage, lost screen real estate and constant pop-up interruptions will find CompleteIM to be the ideal solution.

“While watching cable news one evening, I thought how easy it was to process the information scrolling on the bottom of the television screen, while still focusing on the scheduled program and thought that is the way instant messaging should be,” said CompleteIM founder and developer Rob Woodbyrne. “So, I went about asking IT professionals what their main issues were with available instant messengers. The responses were universal: interruptions, network security and chatting with friends instead of working. So I set out to fix these issues and build CompleteIM. Not only does the scrolling text design eliminate the interruptions of pop up chat boxes, it also incorporates complete network security as a client/server application and controls which allows the administrator to determine how users interact with each other, it even synchronizes with Microsoft Active Directory.”

Available for a free 60 day trial at www.completeim.com/Download.htm, CompleteIM is easy to download and install. If an organization is looking for a secure way to allow users to benefit from the advantages of enterprise instant messaging, CompleteIM is a great solution.

LuCyrne Software is the “David amongst Goliaths.” A small company focused solely on CompleteIM, LuCyrne Software is using a grass roots approach to bring affordable enterprise instant messaging to the corporate world, one satisfied customer at a time.
