GWYNN OAK, Md./EWORLDWIRE/Jan. 19, 2007 --- As more African Americans experience the joys of DSL and broadband Internet access, their search for quality information on relationships and dating has increased. New "targeted" sites are popping up (and disappearing daily); quality has surpassed quantity in seeking new approaches to relationships. Hurry Dates in Black offers a lighthearted way to meet new people and observe their behavior in social situations. The events give attendees the opportunity to see how potential mates conduct themselves around other people.

After a two-year hiatus, Michelle Smith Billups has scheduled a Hurry Dates in Black event for February 16 in Columbia, Md. The exact location is always kept secret to protect clients' privacy. "Mature adults are not treated kindly in the dating game, and my goal is to bring together people who are looking to have a great time and possibly make a 'like-minded' connection," said Smith Billups. "With an open mind and heart, great friendships are made."

The Web site ('<http://www.Ebony1stImpressions.com>') is dedicated to giving all black singles more relationship resources with an emphasis on the more mature singles.

The event will consist of 10-15 Hurry Dates starting with appetizers and ending with dinner. The start time will be between 8:00 - 8:30 p.m. Unlike prior events that were given with her late husband, this will be a solo adventure.

The company Web site has garnered a strong readership group in the last three years. This event has generated a lot of interest from the gentlemen in the area, so the service is still filling a need in the community.

Reservations are now being accepted online. With a strong reception, all slots are anticipated to be filled by February 11, 2007. Contact 410-294-1063 directly with any questions or comments.
