

Leading Funeral Home Directory Launches Funeral Jobs Web Site

Online Resource for Funeral-Related Careers

For Immediate Release

DELRAY BEACH, Fla./EWORLDWIRE/May 17, 2007 --- FuneralHomes.com - the Funeral Director's Resource for effective customer acquisition - recently announced the launch of another facet to its Web site - FuneralJobs.com - a career and employment directory dedicated to the funeral industry. FuneralHomes.com is best known for services connecting pre- and at- need customers with funeral homes and services, across the country or around the corner. Identifying a significant need amongst its clientele, FuneralHomes.com developed the FuneralJobs.com directory to help clients find qualified professionals to serve in facilities and serve as an extension of the human resources department as well as to assist people looking for jobs in the funeral industry.

This new addition brings better human resource services to the independent funeral director. Traditionally, the larger corporations had the advantage of professionals devoted to recruitment - now that same advantage is accessible to the independent funeral homes who use the FuneralJobs.com Web site. Savings in time and effort will be significant for the average independent funeral director, particularly in conjunction with the various other programs FuneralHomes.com offers.

FuneralJobs.com also offers excellent content to help the job seeker - in any field, not just the funeral industry. Resume tips, interview coaching and smart job searching are just some of the topics covered in its innovative site.

Unique and innovative, FuneralHomes.com is the online resource connecting funeral homes with pre- and at-need clients. Millions of consumers are using the Internet every day; more and more use the World Wide Web for research, cost and service comparisons, and purchases of services. FuneralHomes.com offers avenues that attract clients in today's competitive marketplace and increase sales.
