BLOOMINGTON, Ill./EWORLDWIRE/May 9, 2008 --- Celebrating veterans and their sacrifices are in general limited to a handful of days during the year, unless one is a member of a rapidly growing number of thankful Illinois residents who call their American Legion (AL) Post their, "Second Home," and gets involved with AL activities. A prime opportunity to hear and learn more from the highest level - the National Commander - will present itself in several locations next week.

Blagojevich has demonstrated his support and passion for those who've served by establishing a program on Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) Treatment for Veterans (<http://il.gov/PressReleases/ShowPressRelease.cfm?SubjectID=2&RecNum=6792>), and when AL National Commander Marty Conatser makes his way across Illinois over three days - May 14-16, the Governor's work along with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), changes to the GI Bill and dramatic Illinois American Legion membership growth will be the subjects of discussion.

According to Conatser, Illinois is the pace-setter for awareness of the American Legion and its activities in support of vets. "By serving our military at home, the men and women of the American Legion in Illinois are doing their duty to our service personnel who deserve so very much from us."
