"I don't make jokes. I just watch the government and report the facts." Will Rogers

For Immediate Release

PHEONIX, Ariz./EWORLDWIRE/July 23, 2008 --- When it comes to reporting the facts, no one rounds 'em up or heads 'em off better than Will Roberts, nationally syndicated columnist, traveling correspondent, and political humorist. Bearing a true cowboy at heart, Roberts brands his stories in the same spirit as Will Rogers, who is famous for saying, "All I know is what little I read in the newspapers."

A master of trick roping and gun slinging, Roberts sports the ability to sideline audiences of all ages around the world using sharp wit and down-home humor while fanning discussion and swapping ends on current world events.

Roberts has gained worldwide success and notoriety in film, movies, and theaters. He hosts "Weekly Telegram" on PBS's Oklahoma Horizon (<http://www.okhorizon.com>).

"When you read Will Roberts, you get the full package. He has his own unique views and is dynamic, creative and always on target," said Faxts Editor Greg Roberts (<http://www.faxts.com>).

The public may saddle a Web site or blog with Roberts' nationally syndicated column at no charge by simply harnessing the "Will Says" widget or by visiting '<http://www.willrogersusa.com/getwillsays.cfm>'. For those who choose to let him know that his widget has been added to a Web site or blog, he can be reached at will@willrogersusa.com. The "Will Says" widget can be easily customized to coordinate a site's color scheme. Once added, the widget updates automatically with Roberts's most recent commentary.

"Will is one of a kind, and I am proud to call him my friend. One of the most challenging aspects of producing a Web site or blog is keeping content fresh on a daily basis. Will's widget has given me one less worry so that I can focus my attention on the other needs of my readers," said Judyth Piazza, CEO, The SOP (<http://www.thesop.org>).
